WARNING: A tangle in the rope or a knot jam in the descender might cause overload and/or an exceptional descent. This may cause an uncontrolled descent.

When using both hands one will pull the handle while the other one will control the speed of the rope with the non-working part of the rope with the use of the bag free of tangles or knots.

This type of release cut is also useful in situations with low suspension load or difficulty to make a rope stop, as well as for the rescue with users of low weight, ramp descents, positions in which the user is not in total suspension, or in front ropes.

WARNING: Pulling the handle into a folding position to attempt descent is only to be used exceptionally as this action will dislodge the anti-panic function.
